Accompanying CPNI Statement

This statement serves to explain how Wayne Frank, (the "Company") has established operation procedures that ensure compliance with the Federal Communications Commission regulations regarding the protection of Consumer Proprietary Network Information ("CPNI").

The Company does not engage in sales and marketing campaigns and therefore, there is no risk of customers' CPNI being disclosed or provided to third parties. The company does not engage in outbound marketing and therefore, a supervisory review process is unnecessary. If at some point in the future the company decides to engage in sales and marketing campaigns, the company will implement a system by which the status of a customer's CPNI approval can be clearly established prior to the use of CPNI.

The Company requires authentication before the release of CPNI information is given to the requestor. This is established by calling the customer back at the telephone number associated with the communication service, by mailing the information to the address of record, or by releasing it in person following authentication via valid government-issued photo identification at our office. We may disclose CPNI if we are required to by the law, such as Court Order or subpoena.

The Company does not collect and thus does not possess any information concerning the usage of its service by its subscribers. Specifically, the Company does not possess any information concerning the existence, source, or destination of any communication to or from its subscribers.

The Company does maintain contact information necessary to contact and bill its subscribers. This information is kept in locked cabinets and password protected computer files.

The Company continually educates and trains its employees regarding the appropriate use of CPNI. The detail of the training can differ based on the employee's specific job within the Company and whether or not the employee has access to CPNI. The Company has an express disciplinary process in place whereby personnel will be verbally reprimanded with notation in personnel file upon the first occurrence of unauthorized use of CPNI. Upon further occurrence, personnel will face suspension or termination.
